FLORIDA AND NORTH CAROLINA TOO CLOSE TO CALL, QUINNIPIAC UNIVERSITY SWING STATE POLL FINDS; RUBIO UP IN FLORIDA, NORTH CAROLINA SENATE RACE TIED

FLORIDA: Clinton 46 - Trump 45, Johnson 2
NORTH CAROLINA: Clinton 47 - Trump 45, Johnson 3
FLORIDA SENATE: Rubio 50 - Murphy 43
NORTH CAROLINA SENATE: Ross 47 - Burr 47
NORTH CAROLINA GOVERNOR: Cooper 50 - McCrory 47
One day before the 2016 Presidential Election, likely voter results in Florida and North Carolina, two states seen as critical to the final outcome, are too close to call, according to a Quinnipiac University Swing State Poll released today.

In Florida, Republican incumbent U.S. Sen. Marco Rubio leads U.S. Rep. Patrick Murphy, the Democratic challenger, $50-43$ percent. The North Carolina U.S. Senate race between Republican incumbent Richard Burr and Democratic challenger Deborah Ross is a 47 - 47 percent dead heat, the independent Quinnipiac (KWIN-uh-pe-ack) University Poll finds.

Races which list both presidential and vice-presidential candidates show:

- Florida: Clinton gets 46 percent to Trump's 45 percent, with 3 percent for Libertarian Party candidate Gary Johnson and 1 percent for Green party candidate Jill Stein, virtually unchanged from November 2 results;
- North Carolina: Clinton at 47 percent to Trump's 45 percent, with 3 percent for Johnson. Clinton had 47 percent to Trump's 44 percent November 2.
"After hundreds of millions of dollars and untold man-hours, and woman-hours, of campaigning, it would be fitting if the entire country broke into a chorus of "It's beginning to look like 2000," in the two states that matter most - Florida and North Carolina," said Peter A. Brown, assistant director of the Quinnipiac University Poll.

"As the 2016 presidential race hits the finish line, both Florida and North Carolina are virtual ties with Hillary Clinton at 46 percent in Florida and 47 percent in North Carolina and Donald Trump at 45 percent in each state," Brown added.
"There is no realistic scenario under which Trump can win the White House without those two states, while Clinton might get there without them, but it's not a road she wants to travel. While neither of these states is likely to be as close as the 548 votes in Florida that decided the 2000 election, both states could keep the country up counting ballots well into Wednesday morning and perhaps beyond."

In the North Carolina governor's race, State Attorney General Roy Cooper, the Democratic challenger, has 50 percent to Republican incumbent Gov. Pat McCrory's 47 percent.

Florida

Hillary Clinton has 47 percent of Florida voters who already have cast ballots, with 43 percent for Trump.

Independent likely voters are split with 45 percent for Clinton and 44 percent for Trump. Trump leads $86-7$ percent among Republicans, while Clinton takes Democrats $85-10$ percent.

White voters back Trump 57-34 percent while non-white voters back Clinton 68 - 23 percent. Women go to Clinton 50-42 percent, while Trump leads among men $48-40$ percent.

In the Florida Senate race, early voters go 48 percent for Rubio and 46 percent for Murphy.

Sen. Marco Rubio's lead is based on a $55-39$ percent lead among independent likely voters. Republicans back the incumbent $93-3$ percent, while Democrats back the challenger 88-8 percent.

Rubio leads $56-40$ percent among men and $60-34$ percent among white voters. Women are divided $46-46$ percent. Murphy leads $61-33$ percent among non-white voters.
"U.S. Rep. Patrick Murphy is not getting the support a Democrat needs among women and non-white voters to overcome Sen. Marco Rubio's lead among men and white voters," Brown said.

North Carolina

North Carolina early voters go to Clinton $52-40$ percent.
Trump has a 48-39 percent lead among independent likely voters and takes Republicans $89-5$ percent. Democrats back Clinton $92-4$ percent.

Quinnipiac University Poll/November 7, 2016 - page 3

North Carolina women likely voters back Clinton $54-37$ percent, while men back Trump $54-38$ percent. White voters go to Trump $60-31$ percent, while non-white voters back Clinton 81 - 13 percent.

Early voters in the North Carolina U.S. Senate race back Ross 51-43 percent.
Burr takes independent likely voters 51 - 44 percent and Republicans $94-4$ percent. Ross leads among Democrats 89 - 5 percent.

The Republican leads $55-40$ percent among men and $62-33$ percent among white voters. The Democrat leads $54-41$ percent among women and $78-17$ percent among nonwhite voters.

In the North Carolina governor's race, Cooper leads 56-40 percent among early voters.
McCrory gets 49 percent of independent likely voters to Cooper's 46 percent. Republicans go to McCrory 90-7 percent, while Democrats back Cooper 91-6 percent.

The Republican leads $56-41$ percent among men and $61-35$ percent among white voters. The Democrat leads $57-39$ percent among women and $81-17$ percent among nonwhite voters.
"The U.S. Senate race in North Carolina is even closer than the presidential contest there, with Sen. Richard Burr and Democratic Challenger Deborah Ross deadlocked at 47 percent each," Brown said.
"When you throw in the governor's contest in which Democrat Roy Cooper is on the favorable side of a too-close to call race with GOP incumbent Pat McCrory, the state might consider changing its nickname from the Tar Heel State to the tied-up state."

From November $3-6$, Quinnipiac University surveyed:

- 884 Florida likely voters with a margin of error of +/- 3.3 percentage points;
- 870 North Carolina likely voters with a margin of error of $+/-3.3$ percentage points.
